The River Kaladan a ti a. "Since this river flows from Mizo Hills to Burma and finally meet the sea at Akyab port, it is defficult to improve nevigation for power vessel in the Indian Territory unless and untill an ageement is made in between India and Burma to run a power service from Akyad in Burma to Mizo Hills in India. The possibility of utilising this river for large-scale river transport is slim, so the Government of India should explore the possibility of executing an ageement with the Government of Burma for joint utilisation and improvement of the river as an international waterway similar to the line of the river Denube in Europe and the river St. Lawrence of USA. and Canada. If an agreement can be made in this way the possibility of improving the Kaladan river as international water-way is very much bright" a ti a.
